The Bachelor of Social Work (B.S.W.) program is a professional program that prepares students for immediate entry into generalist social work practice in a variety of human service settings. The curriculum has a special focus on social justice and services to American Indians and their communities. Graduates are prepared to work with a variety of different groups in a culturally responsive manner. Initially admitted as pre-social work, BSW students complete a secondary application to enroll in upper level courses. Much of the BSW program can be completed online but students must be on campus for a portion of their social work courses and to satisfy their liberal education requirements. The UMD BSW Program is accredited by the Council of Social Work Education (CSWE).

Why UMD

- Prepares graduates for practice in a variety of human service settings such as schools, mental health, tribal and county agencies, child welfare, healthcare, and community organizing.
- Student-centered with diverse faculty, staff, and students.
- Commitment to culturally responsive practice.
- Bachelor of Social Work graduates can complete a Master of Social Work degree in one year.
- Emphasis on working with American Indian communities.
- Dynamic internships.
